Inteck, Inc. Uses the Hospital's HIS to Improve Financial Performance

DENVER, COLORADO, January 24, 2007. Inteck, an information technology (IT) consulting firm for the healthcare industry, has expanded its services to help hospitals increase revenue, obtain additional cash and reduce write offs by improving the financial performance of the Hospital's IT system.

Improving the financial performance is a complex, technical and labor-intensive challenge for hospitals because of the different processes and needs within each setting. Increasingly, hospitals are losing revenue and writing off cash unnecessarily. At the same time all hospitals have computerized financial systems that can be used more effectively to help each hospital improve financial performance by mechanizing processes, decreasing manual effort while providing performance indicators and reports.

Inteck provides a comprehensive, integrated program that fully pays for itself quickly. The additional revenue and cash collected more than offsets any cost of using Inteck's expert staff. This program can offer assistance with the implementation of a Receivables Management System and with the Vendor Management Program. Inteck's Financial Program provides Key Performance Indicators and Metrics for continual monitoring, evaluation and measurement for personnel involved in the revenue cycle management process. This program also establishes a Benchmarking Process and trains all Business Office personnel to use these systems effectively. In addition, Inteck can provide access to interim staffing, whenever necessary.
